"I'll have to call you back in a moment; we have auditors all over the place," said Lucille Ray, City Clerk Larry Rose's secretary, more often than not this week. This is the once in every four years period when the easily accessible city clerk is inaccessible, at least part of the time.

The audit takes place routinely before the municipal election when city clerk, city treasurer, and three council vacancies occur, and that will be next April.

Councilmen whose terms expire: James Buffington, Tom May and Allen Knight.

The Alcan Pacific Company filed a request for a use permit with the county planning commission Wednesday morning to build a 300 unit, "garden-type" home for "men and women of retirement age." Proposed location is in lower Carmel Valley south of the river 1200 feet west of private bridge entrance to San Carlos Ranch, about a mile and a half from Highway 1. Forty acres are involved.

The land is zoned for single family dwellings on acre minimum lots, also for resort hotels and rest homes on use permit.

Hearing has been set for December 29, 1:30 o'clock in the Salinas Court House. The Lower Carmel Valley Advisory Committee, headed by Leonard Williams, has been asked for a recommendation.

The National Parkway proposal for Highway 1 from San Francisco to Hearst Castle last week ballooned before the eyes of its supporters into a National Parkway from the Canadian to the Mexican borders.

District 4 San Francisco Office representatives of the National Park Division, Department of Interior, met with San Luis Obispo and Monterey County representatives in Salinas, indicated enthusiasm for the proposed National Parkway from San Francisco to Hearst Castle, and revealed that they regarded this a segment of the larger idea.

It's all very lovely, but the money for right-of-way purchase, scenic easement and land purchase to protect view has to come from county or state.

The county planning commission's recommendation for interim zoning down coast to protect the land while the National Parkway project is forming ran into delay before the board of supervisors Monday.

The supervisors continued the matter until December 14, 2:00 o'clock, to give property owners a chance to appear before them. The thought was expressed that they could get more co-operation for the parkway if they didn't step on property owners' toes too precipitately.

City council held a special meeting Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock to pass a resolution commemorating the memory of Albert M. Lester, Member of the Board of Trustees of the Harrison Memorial Library, who died Friday and Andrew W. Martin, former city councilman who died Sunday.

Bloodmobile Here December 10 Is Chance To Do Xmas Giving Early

BY ELIZABETH RAYNE, Chairman of the Blood Program

At this Christmas season the Carmel Chapter of the Red Cross is issuing a plea to those humanitarians of the community to make the greatest gift possible—a pint of their own blood—to benefit their neighbors and friends. And, oddly enough, this invaluable gift has no cost attached save the willingness to give and the time it takes to do so.

Those people who have been recipients of blood because of accident or necessary surgery are the ones who realize that one pint of blood is far more precious than any other gift in the whole world. They know that a pint of blood can make the difference between living and dying.

The Red Cross knows that if an appeal were made to the community for a specific case where blood was needed without delay the response would be immediate and adequate. But the very complexity of blood itself precludes this type of procurement. In order that blood be available in adequate supply for all to use it must be collected regularly, processed, typed and distributed to the hospitals.

The routine call of the Bloodmobile perhaps lacks the glamour of the emergency call, but it is the means of averting that confusing and distressing period for a patient who needs blood, and for the frantic family who in an emergency would pledge anything they own for just one pint of blood.

Red Cross, the agent for procuring the blood which is distributed free of charge to any member of the local community, is now asking the people of the area to make a donation of blood on December 10, at the Chapter House, Eighth and Dolores Streets, 10:00 o'clock in the morning to 1:30 in the afternoon.

Appointments are not necessary but it will save your and our time, and that of the bloodmobile workers if you phone MA 4-6455 in advance.

Egon Petri To Play Beethoven Concerto With Co. Symphony

Return of Dr. Egon Petri, the renowned Dutch pianist, will highlight the Tuesday night winter concert of the Monterey County Symphony at Sunset School auditorium.

Village music-lovers will recall his 1958 performance with the symphony and previous engagements here. As a soloist on the forthcoming program he is to play Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 4 in G Major.

Although active on the San Francisco Conservatory of Music faculty, Dr. Petri is in semi-retirement from 57 years on European and American concert stages. The 78-year-old pianist is heard on a current classical music series over KPFA-FM and occasionally makes a television appearance. Until recently he was resident-pianist at Mills College in the East Bay. He lives in Oakland. He came west in 1946 from a similar residency at Cornell University.

Carrying out Conductor Earl Bernard Murray's plans to make appropriate use of local composers' work, the program Tuesday is to include also Symphonic Essay, an overture written by Philippe Henri Buhler of Pacific Grove. He teaches French at the Army Language School and gives piano instruction at his studio.

The concert will be rounded out with two other orchestral compositions, Mozart's Overture in the Italian Style and Schubert's Symphony No. 4 ("Tragic") in C Minor.

PUBLIC INVITED TO LECTURE

Hungry People and World Peace, is the subject chosen by S. L. Denning, Executive Vice President, Dairy Foods, Inc., Oakland, for the World Affairs Council which will meet in the Carmel High School Auditorium, Friday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

This meeting was arranged by the World Affairs Council in co-operation with the Carmel Adult School and is open to the public without charge.

Long And Possibly Damp Tree Tour Scheduled Tues.

The city council hopes the weather won't change until after Tuesday evening, but they are shaking out their rain coats, just in case. Leaving city hall at 4:00 o'clock, they will visit 11 sites on the monthly tree tour. Three of the agenda matters are requests for tree removals.

J. T. Ransdall has asked that the cypress on San Antonio and Twelfth be removed, since, he says, it impairs access to a proposed car port and obstructs street parking.

On July 7, Mrs. Mary F. Greenwood asked permission to remove a pine in front of her home on Monterey street between First and Second, stating that the tree had been rammed by trucks, was weakened and a hazard. The council looked, failed to see the alleged hazard, but told Mrs. Greenwood they would look at it again before the winter storms. The second look is scheduled for Tuesday.

A mysterious item: "Trees removal, Third and Junipero S.W. Corner, A. R. Vasconcellos," fails to specify if one, five or 15 trees are involved, or whether the trees are pines or wild lilac. Mr. Vasconcellos' reason for the request, "When property cut to sidewalk grade, trees would be left on island mound, exposed."

Other items: P. G. and E. wants to set additional pole to provide service to new construction at First Avenue, northwest of Lincoln street; Rose L. Johnson asks inspection of exposed tree roots in walkway in front of residence at Casanova and Palou; T. S. Bell and Smith Tree Service request permission to thin eucalyptus at Carmelo and Fourth to improve view.

Mrs. M. B. Johnson appeals street superintendent's denial of a driveway permit at Carmelo and Fourth; Fred Lagomarsino offers to pay cost of enlarging storm drain culvert under intersection at

Foresters Urge Removal Of Signs From City Trees

The city forest is cluttered with house name signs, directional signs, paper boxes and miscellaneous items nailed to city trees. This is unattractive, illegal and bad for the trees. The signs, paper boxes and miscellaneous items should be removed, the forest commission, meeting yesterday afternoon, pointed out and took action.

They passed a motion which called attention of Councilman Tom May to the condition and recommended that he instruct Building Inspector Floyd Adams, who is watchdog against illegal signs, to see that material nailed to city trees is removed.

They also asked that city trees be spared from serving as utility posts and guy wire supports.

James Buffington pointed out that in some cases the utility companies had been allowed to string wires from city trees to homes to avoid the greater evil of additional utility poles and said the policy might well be continued where damage to the tree is not a factor. The other members agreed, and Councilman Buffington, who is a forest commissioner until January, supported them in their stand for removal of other illegal matter.

This was the first meeting of the forest commission since July. Resignation of two members and absence of another made it impossible to produce a quorum for the five-man board.

Two new members, Charles E. Myrick and Robert Strum, were on hand, and Jim Buffington. Herbert Blanks would have been present but for a concurrent meeting of the planning commission. He looked into the board room long enough to greet the new members and wish them well.

The board elected Charles Myrick chairman and accepted the resignation of Donald Teague who said, in a letter, that he is too busy to serve.

Street Superintendent William Askew reported that his department had planted 108 new pines this year, that it costs $20 to about $25 per tree to plant, put up wooden guards, and water after planting. He said that most of the pines are planted at property owner's request and it would help if the property owner would share with the street department the responsibility of watering the new tree.

Chairman Myrick reported on his personal observation of the illegal use of city trees to support signs, etc. Buffington made the motion that the matter be referred to Councilman May for action.

Planners Recommend New Park Ordinance And Land Purchase

The planning commission, after public hearings yesterday afternoon, recommended the interim zoning ordinance be extended until June 30, 1960; a park zone (P) with three divisions, be established; the two-lot Prewitt property at the corner of Monte Verde Street and Sixth Avenue be rezoned from residential to P-3 off-street parking use for Pine Inn patrons; and that the city buy the three-lot White property on Torres Street in Block 54 for future corporation yard use.

Commissioners will meet at 4:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to adopt resolutions on these four matters. The official recommendations will be sent to the city council for action.

The new park zone (P) has three divisions, P-1, P-2, and P-3.

The first, P-1, will include publicly owned beaches and parks kept in their natural state.

P-2 zone will establish recreation areas and recreation facilities needed by the city and the surrounding area.

P-3 zone is for landscaped off-street parking lots. Land zoned P-3 will retain its original basic zoning classification. If the parking lot is abandoned the land will revert to its original use.

P-3 zones will only be permitted after the street superintendent and planning commission have approved plans and specifications in accordance with the new ordinance governing landscaped off-street parking lots.

A city council public hearing on rezoning the Prewitt property to P-3 use will be held on December 9. (See page four, this issue.)

PADRE CAGERS PLAY AT GUSTINE TONIGHT

Carmel High's varsity basketball team, defending champions of the Gustine Tournament, opens play in the popular hoop festival tonight against the rangy Hughson High quintet. Coach Dan Yurkovich's 1959 squad hasn't been to the post yet this season but the Red & Gray hoopsters have had scrimmage sessions with Junipero High and have learned why the baskets are hung on the backboards. The Padres breezed thru the 1958 Gustine Tournament without a defeat and returned with a carload of awards which go to the winner. In addition to winning the team title, Carmel placed two boys on the all-tournament team and Russell Wise, a junior center, was picked as the most valuable player in the tournament. Wise will again lead the Padres at Gustine and his valuable tournament experience should give the Carmel gang a lift. This will be Carmel's fourth entrance in the Gustine Tournament, having won the consolation title race, out of the money once, and picking up the whole bundle last year. Tournament officials rate the Padres as slight favorites to repeat their 1958 victory but they expect La Grande and Los Banos to give the Carmel lads a good battle for the top spot.

Tonight's game with Hughson starts at 6:30 with time for tomorrow night's game depending on whether the Padres win or lose. A win for Carmel will find the Padres taking the court at 8:00 o'clock Friday night while a loss will mean a 4:30 game.

Carmel's starting quintet in tonight's tournament action will be Russ Wise and John Wilkin, forwards; Fred Bucher and Mike Draper guards; and Chris Wilkin at center. The front line averages over 6-3 in height and is certain to give the Padres a good hand when the battle for the rebounds begins. At 5-8 Mike Draper is the midget of the crew but the scrappy junior has plenty of hustle and is a fine play maker. Fred Bucher stretches to 5-9 and is rated the top defensive player on the squad. The Padres have plenty of experienced reserve players since every player on the squad has lettered either as a lightwight or junior-varsity performer. Toby Edson, Pat Boyle, Mike Cook, Jim Aitken, and Curt Van Arsdale back up the front line starters with Dave Fuller, Doyle Clayton, Dave Hanson, Phil O'Shea, and Alan Dahlstrand ready for action at the guard spots.

While at Gustine the Carmel players will be guests in the homes of the Gustine players and when the Carmel Tournament unfolds in March, the Carmel players will return the favor by having the Gustine squad as guests in their homes.

FOOTBALL BANQUET CLOSES CARMEL HIGH GRID SEASON

A Father-Son Football banquet at Maxey's Chuck Wagon Restaurant last Monday night closed out one of Carmel High's most successful seasons and stirred up some enthusiasm for next season's squad. Official host for the fathers was Dr. John Faia with the Padre football captains, Harrison Hilbert and Ronnie Faia, acting for the players. Reed Pollock, the Peninsula's most avid football booster, was MC for the evening and kept the lively program moving at a crisp clip. Elwood Wilson, father of fullback Eddie, introduced the principal speaker, Wee Willie Wilkin, father of tackles Chris and John, who regaled the audience with the trials and tribulations of professional football. Gifts for the hard-working Carmel coaching staff of Don Craig, Lew McCreery, Brad Meyers, Joe Bronzino, and George Mosolf were presented by Captains Hilbert and Faia. A bit heavy and a little weary after four or more trips through the Chuck Wagon chow line, the Padre gridders, yell leaders, song leaders, guests, and coaches adjourned at 9:30 to hit the books and dream of other successful seasons such as this one.

LOBOS TRIP STOCKTON IN SEQUOIA BOWL

Three touchdowns in the first half and a clincher td in the final period gave Coach George Porters MPC football squad a convincing win over the Stockton JC aggregation in the Sequoia Bowl at Sanger last Saturday night. The Lobos appeared to be much the better of the two teams and the 26-21 score is not a true indication of the strength of the two clubs. With the game well sewed-up in the final period, the Lobos eased up and gave away a pair of Stockton scores late in the period. Hard-running Lobo backs, Eddie Estaban, Bill Woodward, Dennis Jackson, Mike Ricketts, Mike Mosolf, LeRoy Guiterrez, Danny Aiello, and Maurice Smith riddled the Stockton line for huge chunks of yardage while the Guiterrez to Guilford scoring pass kept the secondary honest. Excellent end play by Otis Gresham and Benny Enea plus the lightning charges of guard Willie Redmond pretty well bottled up the vaunted Stockton running game.

The Lobos will close out the grid season with a banquet at the Outrigger Restaurant on Cannery Row at 8:00 o'clock this Saturday night. Tickets for the banquet may be secured at Rasmussen & Moody, Anastasi's on the Wharf, and the Monterey Peninsula College.

A. W. Martin, Jr.

Andrew W. "Andy" Martin Jr., former Carmel city councilman, died on Sunday at his home on Carpenter Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues after a year of serious illness. He was 61 years old.

Mr. Martin was born in San Francisco on March 6, 1898. He attended San Francisco schools until moving with his parents to Salinas, then continued his education in that city. His father, A. W. Martin Sr., a cattle rancher, was the Salinas postmaster for many years, and served two terms in the California Assembly.

During World War I, Andy Martin was in the Navy submarine service. He joined the California Highway Patrol following the war and remained in this service for 17 years before he retired with the rank of sergeant in 1947, because of ill health. He first was associated with the CHP Salinas office then, in 1941, was chosen to head the new Peninsula CHP office in Monterey.

After leaving the CHP, Mr. Martin opened a real estate office which he operated until 1956, located at that time at Ocean Avenue and Mission Street.

In 1948, Mr. Martin was a successful candidate for the Carmel city council. He was commissioner of health and safety for the first two years of his four-year council term, then served for two years as police commissioner. He declined to run for reelection in 1952.

Mr. Martin was a past president of the California branch of the International Footprinters Association, a service organization for law enforcement officers. He also was a member of the Salinas Elks Lodge, the American Legion and the American Radio Relay League.

Since 1941, Mr. Martin had lived in Carmel with his wife, Aileen Sullivan Martin, whom he married in San Jose on July 8, 1924. In addition to his wife, he is survived by a brother, Giles A. Martin of Auburn.

Rosary was recited on Tuesday evening at Mission Mortuary. Requiem Mass was celebrated in Carmel Mission yesterday morning after rites at the mortuary. Burial was in Golden Gate National Cemetery in San Bruno.

Eight Carmel police officers, in uniform, including Police Chief Clyde Klaumann, attended the Requiem Mass in the Mission, to honor former Police Commissioner Martin.

Snow White Ballet Was Another Example Of Joanne Nix's Ability

By David Eldridge

It was utterly gratifying to me to learn that Sunset Auditorium was completely sold out for the Sunday afternoon performance of the Carmel Ballet Company's Snow White. It should have been and it was only too bad that the first performance on the Saturday night previous was not played to a full house. People of the Peninsula who missed this charming production were cheated out of a ballet danced not by professionals, with the exception of David Hardie, the guest artist, but by members of the Joanne Nix Carmel Ballet Academy. The way they performed showed the members of the cast were serious students of the dance, performing delightfully under the direction of Mrs. Nix and giving an excellent example of fine dancing and delightful choreography.

The costuming by Eleanor Gamble was worthy of any professional production, fresh and crisp, brilliantly colorful, and cleverly detailing the various characters of the story. Mrs. Gamble should be highly complimented for her taste and the execution of the varied and intricate work which went into the costumes. The stage sets were simple and very effective, being a background for the story and yet framing the dancers, and with the restrained decor furthering the tale. Credit for the scenery goes to Ronnie Cummings, and the very effective lighting was the work of Diana Hardy.

The ballet opened in the boudoir of the Wicked Queen, danced by Bonnie Wager, who was menacing in her determination to destroy Snow White, beautifully portrayed by Pamela Gamble. The three Ladies in Waiting decked the Wicked Queen with her jewels, after which she calls forth the Genie of the Mirror, danced by Dale Lefler. A criticism of this particular scene could be that Mr. Lefler and Miss Wager played the pantomimic story too fast for the audience to grasp what they were trying to portray. Broader movements with simplified and slower gestures would have conveyed their meaning much more clearly. Later in this act an ensemble by the Pages and Ladies in Waiting introduced Pamela Beales as the Jester, and then followed a delightful bit of buffoonery and pantomime by Miss Beales, and the act closed with the Wicked Witch enlisting the aid of the Woodsman to take the unwilling Snow White into the woods where he promised to kill the young maid.

Act Two introduced the corps de ballet of Forest Sylphs ruled by their Queen, Pamela Beales, and assisted by the Woodland Sprite, Bonnie Wager. Among them, they drove the Woodsman out of the woods, thus saving Snow White, and the woodland spirits promised to take care of the young maid. Various solos by the principals in this act were beautifully danced, and Miss Beales and Miss Wager are both accomplished and finished ballerinas. The Corps de Ballet not only was pleasing to the eye but danced with precision and grace.

In Act Three the ballet rounded into a stirring and spirited exhibtion of dancing, and the story was delineated with clarity and charm. Opening with a dance by the Fireflies, performed by the younger members of the Ballet Academy, the youngsters flitted back and forth on a darkened stage with tiny lights glittering against their black clad bodies, giving a perfect illusion of fireflies in the summer dark. Next came the Seven Dwarfs, again the little folk, and in this particular episode you realized how children under expert direction are able to portray with clarity and aplomb the beloved stories of childhood and thus are able to catch up the audience into their own world of make believe. Their dance was enchanting and done with gaiety and charm. After discovering Snow White, the Dwarfs grouped themselves about her at the door of their small house while the Blue Birds—Stephenie Cummings and Sherrie Nix—entertained them with an excellently danced duet, and then came the Forest Fauns, Colleen Cabral and Jeri Stoneson. Not knowing which young girl was which, this reviewer can only offer his compliments to the one who so expertly flirted, cajoled, and ogled, not only her partner but the audience as well. Her mobile face reflected each emotion and she included the audience in her portrayal in a manner far beyond her years, showing talent and ability to watch in the future.

The Dwarfs go to work, warning Snow White not to leave and after a short solo of joy by her, the Witch comes in, tempts her with the poisoned apple which Snow White eats and then falls senseless on the ground. The Forest Queen with her retinue comes to the aid of her protege and brings in the Prince, danced by David Hardie, costumed in white. He is a virile and professionally accomplished dancer, and gave body to the rather insipid part of this character. Waking Snow White with a kiss he raised her from the ground. Here the ballet came to its climax and here Pamela Gamble showed her ability and her right to be called a ballerina. Her solos and the Pas de Deux danced with David Hardie, were beautifully done, showing great talent, years of study and a sincere and deep approach to the dance. Miss Gamble is long limbed and finely drawn, physically, the way a ballet dancer should be, graceful and with excellent balance and control. She has a future in theatre if she decided to follow it. The ballet closed with the entire company joining in a short ensemble number and a well staged picture at the finish.

While there was no pretense at this being a professional production, it had all of the earmarks of one. We realized the performers, for the most part, were students, but Mrs. Nix's ability as a choreographer and teacher, the combination of the costumes and scenery, and the sincereness and ability of the performers, gave the entire production the aura of professionalism. Carmel and the entire Peninsula is fortunate in having the Carmel Ballet Academy as an integral part of the community life, for Mrs. Nix adds each year, not only to the training and the teaching of her pupils, but to the cultural life of the Peninsula and this production of Snow White is another example of her ability. The audience realized this and their enthusiastic applause told the cast that they were a success.

Fatal Wedding Plays To Packed House

By James Briscoe

The Fatal Wedding roared off to a brilliant start of its run at the First Theatre Friday evening, playing to a packed house. True to the tradition of this unique theater, the melodrama was populated with the appropriate villains, wronged heroine, and all the other characters and components which go to make up the pieces of that period.

The Fatal Wedding is a melodrama which gives the actors plenty of chances to show their ability in the various roles, and the members of the cast were excellent. Patricia Ramsey was a lovely and appealing wronged heroine, emerging vindicated at the conclusion to be reunited with her repentant husband, played most convincingly by Al Olinger. Laverne Seeman as the conniving villainess, ably assisted in her nefarious designs by Dale Skillicorn in the role of the villain, was properly menacing as was Mr. Skillicorn, and the hisses of the audience when they appeared on the stage gave evidence of their excellent portrayals. Dorothy Fox as the heroine's friend and Leonard Will as her "lover true" both played with aplomb and sincerity. The two children in the cast were show stoppers, as children so often are, the roles being played by Georganne Withee and Karen Morgan. Madeleine Hicks scored a triumph in her role of the Irish Maid and this accomplished actress brought forth a well earned round of applause on several exits. The cast was rounded out by Jack

Studio Players Give Impressive Production Of Death Of A Salesman

By Virginia Shaw

With the local premiere of Arthur Miller's play Death of a Salesman, the Studio Company demonstrates its full resources as a mature theatre organization.

The initial Studio presentations under the aggressive new policy and directorship of Richard Bailey—Ionesco's The Chairs and The Bald Soprano, and the staged reading of Thomas' Under Milk Wood—were frankly experimental: their offbeat appeal almost eclipsed the excellence of the performances. But in Death of a Salesman, the company knowingly takes on a "modern classic," one which has reached a wide audience on both screen and stage, and has suffered a surfeit of critical analysis. Willy Loman, the "salesman," has become a stock character of American fiction—a personification of the bewildered "common man" in modern society. It is a challenging play, and The Studio presents it honestly and movingly in a production which is professional in all but the academic sense of the word.

Death of a Salesman is a searching, often agonizing exploration of the character of Willy, a weary, defeated old drummer whose youthful dreams and ambitions have led him ever deeper into self-deception. Flashbacks in which past and present are juxtaposed reveal how his commitment to unreality has left both Willy and the sons he has never really understood incapable of coping with changing conditions.

Like most works of art, Death of a Salesman communicates on several levels, and here it seems that the playwright has made not only an intricate, beautifully developed analysis of the breakup of a single individual, but a parable of the disintegration of The American Dream.

The Studio production is distinguished in the combined excellence of direction, acting and technical quality. The staging alone is a triumph of creative ingenuity over the limitations of space. Equally imaginative is the lighting, employed as an integral part of set and staging.

Beautiful performances by Edith Dinkin and Jack Muldowney in the principal roles are backed up by a strong supporting cast. Mr. Muldowney displays dramatic insight and conviction in the kaleidoscopic characterization of Willy Loman, a role demanding the full range of an actor's talent. But Willy and the meaning of his inexorable, flawed fate receive dignity and real tragic stature through the loyalty and understanding of his wife, Laura. The role is played by Edith Dinkin with sustained emotional power which becomes nobility in the deeply moving scenes where Laura commands attention to Willy's suffering as a man, and pleads for her sons' compassion towards him.

As the ex-football-hero son, Biff, psychologically crippled by Willy's indulgence and pride, Errol Allen is slightly handicapped by the fine diction and polished style which are otherwise among his chief assets, but he succeeds in making Biff a touching and believable character. Happy, the callous, concupiscent "second son," is perfectly portrayed by Joe Dalgleish.

Alan McMahon and Alton Holliday contribute excellent performances as the Loman's easygoing friend, Charley, and his fussy, bookish son, Bernard—both actors skillfully executing the switch from episodes in Willy's past to the present. Roger Gray is fine, too, as Willy's cavalier brother Ben, who represents the adventure, riches and success which Willy dreams of but never achieves.

Each smaller role is distinctively portrayed: Ted Weston as a cold-blooded businessman, Janine Johnson as a woman whom Willy dallies with during one of his lonely trips on the road, Pat Ryan as a breezy but sympathetic waiter, Renita Blenn and Gilda Dayton as two cafe pickups, and Mary Thomas as a secretary.

The directoral ability of Dick Bailey is reflected in the sustained impact of the whole performance. Ruth Jordan Allan is responsible for the effective set, and Reed Putnam for the imaginative lighting and sound. Maria Hallsted provides for costuming, and Ann Flyn and Wylene Bryant assist with properties. Agostino Velletri designed the posters and program.

For the remainder of the 1959-60 season, the Studio promises a fascinating and formidable sampling of theatre: Othello, A Streetcar Named Desire, Hedda Gabler, The Lady's Not for Burning, and the Maids, as well as a mime-reading of Robinson Jeffers' The Cretan Women. Meanwhile, they have a present triumph in Death of a Salesman, in its limited engagement at The Studio on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock.

Sarah Warne

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Warne, 98, the mother of Mrs. Charles H. Rayne, died on Friday in her daughter's home in Carmel.

Mrs. Warne was born in London on September 1, 1861. She came to the United States 23 years ago and had lived in Carmel for 20 years. Her husband William Elsworth Warne, died in England in 1929.

Mrs. Warne was a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church.

Besides Mrs. Rayne, she is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Sidney V. Gruchy of Carmel; three grandchildren, Derek and Clive Rayne and Miss Vivien Gruchy, all of Carmel; and three great-grandchildren, Shelley, Melinda and Gregory Rayne of Carmel.

The Reverend David Hill, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, officiated at private funeral services for Mrs. Warne on Tuesday afternoon in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea. Interment was in El Carmelo Cemetery.

Dr. Tully Knoles

Dr. Tully Cleon Knoles, former president of the College of the Pacific and a frequent local visitor, died on Sunday in his home in Stockton of a heart attack at the age of 83.

Dr. Knoles was born in Petersburg, Illinois. He was a noted quarterback for the University of Southern California during his undergraduate years. Following graduation he joined the USC faculty and was a professor of history and head of the USC history department in 1919 when he accepted the position of president of College of the Pacific then situated in San Jose.

In 1924 COP, through efforts of Dr. Knoles, moved to its present location in Stockton. Dr. Knoles brought football coach Amos Alonzo Stagg to COP in 1932 following the latter's retirement at the age of 71 from the position of head coach at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Knoles retired in 1946 after 27 years as COP president. He was given the honorary title of chancellor and in this capacity continued to advise on the academic program at COP until two years ago.

He was a leader in the Methodist Church and seven times represented the California - Nevada District at the international General Conference of the Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife of 60 years, Emily; five sons, Gordon Knoles, Pacific Grove school trustee, Peter, vice president of Sacramento State College, George, Stanford University professor, Tully Jr., director of adult education for the Palo Alto school system, and Leslie, dean of men and director of students at Modesto Junior College; three daughters, Lorraine Knoles, professor of history at COP, Edith Knoles, a teacher in Los Angeles, and Mrs. Herford McAllister of San Mateo.

Memorial services were held yesterday in Morris Chapel on the College of the Pacific campus.

Margery Webb

Mrs. Margery Parker Webb, former Carmel resident, died on Thanksgiving Day in Brentwood where she had moved a year ago to live with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph K. Morford. She had been in ill health for a long time.

Her husband, the late Arthur Cleveland Webb, died in 1947, also on Thanksgiving Day. He was a former West Coast executive of the American Can Company with headquarters in San Francisco. He and Mrs. Webb divided their time between their Carmel and San Francisco homes until Mr. Webb's death. Mrs. Webb then lived in Lexington, Kentucky, before returning to Carmel to establish a home on Santa Rita Street.

Besides her daughter, she is survived by two grandsons, Joseph K. Morford II of Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Arthur Webb Morford of Los Angeles.

Funeral services were held on Monday in Beverly Hills.

Albert Lester

Albert M. Lester died on Friday in a local hospital following a heart attack.

Mr. Lester was born in Santa Cruz on March 28, 1882. He was associated with the California Packing Company for 50 years, serving as vice president of the organization for 25 years before he retired and moved from Berkeley to Carmel 13 years ago.

At the time of his death Mr. Lester was a member of the board of trustees of the Harrison Memorial Library, a capacity in which he had served the City of Carmel since November, 1950.

Boy Scouting was a major interest. He had been a member of the National Council of Boy Scouts of America and president of the Monterey Bay Area Boy Scout Council. He was instrumental in establishing Boy Scout Camp Pico Blanco on the Little Sur River in Los Padres National Forest and worked to obtain the land for the camp from the Hearst estate.

Mr. Lester was president of the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest in 1952. The previous year he was campaign chairman for the Chest and served on the board of directors of this organization for many years.

He is survived by his wife, Ethel Parrish Lester of Carmel; two daughters, Mrs. Adrienne Lester Geiger of Monrovia and Mrs. Susan Lester Powell of Berkeley; a son, Edwin Parrish Lester of San Francisco; three sisters, Mrs. Adrienne Montgomery and Mrs. Irene Fawcus of San Francisco and Mrs. Evelyn Owens of Los Gatos; and nine grandchildren.

Another son, Major Albert Lester Jr. (USAF), died on Tuesday of last week in Dayton, Ohio.

Holy Rosary was recited on Sunday evening in Piedmont Memorial Chapel in Oakland. Requiem Mass was celebrated on Monday morning in St. Theresa's Catholic Church following rites in Piedmont Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Oakland.

LAST CURTAIN CALL

Autumn,
Aging actress,
Her glamor on the wane,
Knows her last curtain call has come
And weeps.

—LUCIA TRENT

ADJUSTMENT

On a chilly Maine wilderness dawn
I felt my life was blighted in its May,
And envied August's short, brilliant day—
No puzzled youth or spring outdrawn—
She rose a queen in purple and fine lawn.

Now across life in a far, canyoned state,
Detached, I watch dawn halo the eastern hill.
Shadows like years grow short and still;
Again like years they merge with night and wait
To rise with dawn. Nature can recreate—
For youth and age the span remains too great.

—PHOEBE W. HOFFMAN

MEMORY FOR TOMORROW

Here cups of long-lashed gentian lift to the late sky their reminiscent blue and, slow across the sweep of slope, thought pendulums with autumn breezes' shift.
Where azure films the furrowed earth, young memories once more view summer and hear warm echoing of mirth.
But too soon sunset blares her gift of chill that lets growth hope for dreams to nourish life till spring's rebirth.
If first frost reach this night to envelope fringed gentians, then as dawn wakes new, remembrance is tomorrow globed in dew.

—HELEN FAULKNER

SWIFTLY NOW

These brief November days
When mountain peaks are drowned in haze,
And autumn's sun moves
swiftly to the west,
I see last April bloom;
Am haunted by the spring
perfume
Of three exquisite, tall-stemmed, purple Iris.

Then I watch bonfire colors of November
Ignite the mountains; and recall last summer:
I feel July again
Wilt hopes like flowers
thirsting for rain;
And I am glad the year moves
swiftly now.

Lathrop Brown

Lathrop Brown of Saddle Rock Ranch, Big Sur, died on Saturday in Fort Myers, Florida, at the age of 75. He was the father of Mrs. M. C. Jenkins of Pebble Beach.

Mr. Brown acquired property down the coast 30 years ago and 20 years ago built a home on the cliffs below Highway 1 above a rockbound cove. He lived in this house and developed his ranch, which extended over the coastal mountains, between trips to New York necessitated by real estate business in the East.

A graduate of Harvard University, Mr. Brown was the college roommate of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and a lifelong friend of the late President.

He was also an outstanding Democrat and the congressman from New York's first district from 1913-1915. From 1917-1918 Mr. Brown was a special assistant to Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane and following his term in Congress was a delegate to the Democratic conventions in San Francisco, New York and Philadelphia.

Mr. Brown was a member of the Knickerbocker Racquet and Tennis Club of New York City, the Southampton Club and Metropolitan Club.

In addition to his daughter living in Pebble Beach, he is survived by his wife, Helen Cooper Brown, and another daughter, Mrs. Halla Brown Rosenbaum.

Memorial services for Mr. Brown are pending and will be announced later.

Perry Tompkins

Perry Thomas Tompkins, father of Avery Tompkins of Carmel, died on Sunday in a Livermore hospital. He was a former realtor in the Bay Area engaged after 1906 in the development of the City of Berkeley. He also took part in the planning and marketing of Northbrae and Claremont and, with the late Governor C. C. Young and Duncan McDuffie, created St. Francis Woods residential area in San Francisco. He had been a frequent visitor to Carmel since 1905 and had many friends here.

Mr. Tompkins was born on May 13, 1866, in San Bernardino. His father, Thomas Tompkins, in 1846, came by sailing vessel from New York around Cape Horn to San Francisco, then a settlement of nine houses. After a voyage to Hawaii, Mr. Tompkins' father settled in the Sacramento Valley and was associated with Sutter and Marshall. Later he moved to San Bernardino. He married Artemesia Perry, a member of Commodore Perry's family.

His son, Perry Thomas Tompkins, graduated from the University of California with a bachelor of laws degree in 1892. He obtained a B. A. and M. A. degree from Harvard University in 1902. From 1893-95, he was principal of Santa Rosa High School and from 1895-1906 was head of the science department at Lowell High School in San Francisco.

The day before the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and fire, Mr. Tompkins left this position to become associated with Mason-McDuffie Company, Berkeley realtors. He continued as partner in this firm until he retired in 1955.

In 1922, Mr. Tompkins organized the Berkeley Guarantee Building and Loan Association and was president of the organization until 1955. He was an organizer of the First National Bank, Berkeley, and its first vice president from 1922-30. Later this bank was purchased by the Bank of America. Mr. Tompkins was chairman of the advisory board of the Bank of America in Berkeley from 1950-55.

A member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and Phi Beta Kappa honorary scholastic fraternity, Mr. Tompkins also belonged to the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco, the Faculty Club of the University of California, the American Academy for the Advancement of Science, the Sierra Club, the Rotary Club and was active in the Berkeley Y.M.C.A. and Boy Scout organizations.

He is survived by his son Avery of Carmel and three sisters, Mrs. Daisy Hansen, Mrs. Mable R. Wiseman and Mrs. Violet Henshilwood, all of Long Beach. His wife, Xora Avery Tompkins, died in 1955.

Private funeral services were held on Monday in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium in Pacific Grove.

Caroline McClure

Caroline Sumner McClure, member of a renowned New England family, died on Friday in a local hospital. She had lived in Carmel for 20 years, making her home in Hatton Fields with her son, H. D. Wood McClure. The late Charles Sumner Greene of Carmel, noted American architect, was her distant cousin.

Mrs. McClure was born in St. Louis, Missouri, the daughter of Circuit Court Judge and Mrs. Horatio Dan Wood. Her grandfather, Captain Thomas Hubbard Sumner, a Harvard graduate, made voyages on both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans in sailing ships. In 1837, on a voyage in bad weather from Charleston, South Carolina, to Greenock, Scotland, Capt. Sumner discovered what is now known as the Sumner line of division. This enabled him to correct an error in dead reckoning which "might have proved disastrous," as related in the U. S. Navy's American Practical Navigator by Bowditch. This authority also states that the Sumner line of position "represents the most important principle in modern navigation." Mrs. McClure was also a direct descendent of Roger Williams, founder of Providence, Rhode Island.

Her husband, George McClure, died in 1952. He was the son of Colonel Charles McClure.

A talented sculptress in her youth, Mrs. McClure exhibited an outstanding piece of sculpture in the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904.

In addition to her son in Carmel, Mrs. McClure leaves two sisters, Adelaide Read of Concord, Massachusetts, and Elizabeth Horton of Boston, Massachusetts. A daughter, Caroline, died in 1925.

Private funeral services and interment will be in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, Tarrytown, New York tomorrow afternoon.

WAYFARER AUXILIARY

Christmas in other lands was featured at the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer on December 1, two members of the organization describing their childhood celebrations in Mexico and Germany and later festivities in China. Mrs. Elena Bergman, born in our neighbor country, described the deeply religious but joyous observance of the holiday in her home and her convent school. The goodies they found in their stockings were nuts, sweets and various dried fruits. Mrs. Eva Titus told of customs handed down for generations, with religious ceremonies followed by social and feasting delights shared by employees of the country estate. Baking of cookies and cakes began six weeks before the holiday to insure a plentiful supply for all. Similar customs were carried to China, where family Oriental employees were included in the gay observances.

Piano solos preceding the talks were given by Miss Ann Del Carlo: Claire de Lune by DeBussy, and Nocturne by Chopin. Mrs. L. J. Fletcher, program chairman, arranged the program and introduced the participants. Mrs. J. R. Christie, president, told briefly of Boxing Day, the day after Christmas, activities in England and Canada, her homeland.

Election of officers at the business meeting resulted in Mrs. Christie being re-elected as president; Mrs. Charles W. McDaniel chosen as first vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Herman A. Johnson as second vice president and membership chairman; Mrs. Aimee Charlton, secretary; Mrs. Eugene Ingalls, treasurer; Miss Maude Hook and Mrs. Cree L. Wilder, circle leaders. Two more circle leaders must be found. The nominating committee was Mrs. Lloyd Kindall, Mrs. McDaniel and Mrs. C. Ramsey. The program and business followed a holiday luncheon served by Circle 4, Mrs. Harvey R. Herold, chairman, in the social room dominated by a pine tree with gay Christmas decorations which will stand through the holidays.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The beauty of holiness will be a theme dealt with at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God the Only Cause and Creator."

Scriptural selections will include this verse (I Chronicles 16:29) "Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come before him: worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness."

Correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include (246:13, 23): "As the physical and material, the transient sense of beauty fades, the radiance of Spirit should dawn upon the enraptured sense with bright and imperishable glories . . . Man, governed by immortal Mind, is always beautiful and grand. Each succeeding year unfolds wisdom, beauty, and holiness."

and abroad in concert halls, night clubs, on radio and television. He has played before the royalty of Europe as well as in movies. F. D. R. enjoyed his singing and Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt took Josh as her protege on a concert tour of Europe in 1950. Fifty thousand people turned up for one concert in Stockholm where fans tore off parts of his clothing for souvenirs.

Josh's guitar sings to him as he sings to the people. The fact that he is a polished performer only adds to his deep felt sincerity about the songs he sings.

Martha Schlamme is an internationally known folk artist who sings in more than a dozen languages. Miss Schlamme has been widely acclaimed for her lovely and expressive treatments of Jewish, European, Israeli, and American folk songs. Her records and Town Hall concerts have given her a very large following, especially on the East Coast.

Folk song critics say, "Beware the pear-shaped tones." Martha Schlamme destroys the idea that folk songs are better sung without a cultured voice. She not only sings a song in its native idiom but through her voice and interpretation elevates it to an art.

Most musical events, especially in Carmel, attract a passive, nonparticipating audience. Folk music will come as a shock to this type of audience. It is the audience that "makes" a folk music concert. The audience may be asked to join in on the chorus, to clap in rhythm, to hum or even to whistle depending upon who the folk singer is, but above all to participate.

Fatal Wedding Plays To Packed House

Kidwell as an out-of-a-job Shakespearean actor, Richard Fleming as a policeman, and Phil Betts as the clergyman, each one giving excellent account of their parts. In all it was a splendid cast and another one to enter in the book of the Troupers of the Gold Coast. Sets by Al Olinger were fine, and Kay Knudsen's lighting was deft and in the mood. The whole show, both melodrama and Olio, was stunningly costumed by Rhoda Johnson, giving the production both style and that authentic touch for which Mrs. Johnson is justly famed.

The Olio which followed intermission was lively, fun, and well done, and Alex Olivetti as Master of Ceremonies was, as always, smooth and at ease, keeping the audience laughing while he introduced the various numbers. Beautiful Moonlight sung by Gail Johnson and Dick Fleming was one of the highlights of the Olio, and the ensemble numbers choreographed by Patricia Ramsey were smart and full of life. Each member of the cast and the Olio, too, should be completely satisfied with their efforts for they have a fine performance throughout and a kudo goes to Dale Skillicorn, the director of the melodrama, for his work with the cast.
